BIORACTURED FUTURE

The previous season's experience and the new way to create a colour in a digital format has pleased enormously. This dual layout gives a direct overview of which colour families are dominating, and at the same time the colour moods that are directly related to our styling trends. This offers a much more liberal approach with more possibilities, giving creatives the freedom to build colour cards in their own personal way. The overriding message of the final card is a need and desire for colour, a vital part of the post-covid recovery strategy.
