The global pandemic has changed the consumer. What initially seemed to be a shift towards easy comfort during lockdown, soon evolved into enthusiasm for a diverse bodyfashion offer. As dressing became more personal and less public women gravitated towards their own vision of feel-good comfort and moodboosting garments. In the wake of this confidence and self-awareness, a new CONSUMER-CENTRIC market emerges. How people live, what they do, how they feel, drives a different approach to design, pushing the boundaries of lingerie. It's time to RE-THINK.
